Interurban Gossip.

Col. James Houchins, of Jefferson City, one of the greatest boosters of the State of Missouri, and owner of "Astral King," the wonderful saddle stallion, has added another enterprise to the long list of those he is pushing and that is an electric line, says the Mexico Ledger. He states the people in his section are looking toward the Mexico, Santa Fe and Perry Traction Company to connect the capital city with Columbia.

"Jefferson city has connections with Mexico," said Mr. Houchins to a Ledger representative. "What we want is better and more direct connections with Columbia. The Mexico electric road is the only one of the many which has materialized and we hope it will soon be in position to make us a proposition.

"It will be but a short time until this entire part of the state will be a network of interurbans. They are bound to come and no one can gainsay that they will be of unlimited benefit. We want the electric line and when they are ready to offer their terms can make it interesting for them.

Prince of Wales Feathers.

When the Black Prince died he ordered the badge of three feathers, with certain words as motto, to be placed upon his tomb at Canterbury.
The words were "Ich dien Houmont." The origin of the badge is obscure. It is commonly supposed that the Black Prince took it from the helmet of King John of Bohemia, his prisoner, and henceforth adopted it as his own cognizance. Even as the peculiar badge of the Prince of Wales, however, the history of the feather is uncertain. "From the evident pride taken in them by the Black Prince, we may fairly assume them to have had reference to his personal achievements," wrote the late Somerset Herald; but he adds, it should not be ignored that this badge is to be found on seals of members of the houses of York and Lancaster, who were not princes of Wales.—Westminster Gazette.

THE ATHLETIC GIRL IN ACTION

Feat in Life-Saving of Miss Constance Harrison, of Knox College.

The heroine in this story from the Chicago Evening Post, is a cousin of D. E. Dexter a student in the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri:

The Chicago girl, Constance Harrison at Knox College, who plunged into the icy waters of a lake near Galesburg and rescued a drowning boy has furnished a text for many summer sermons on the value of knowing how to swim. Whether, as one report said, the young woman used the new superior stroke known as the American "crawl" in overtaking the sinking youth, or simply got there in the orthodox fashion, by dint of courage and strong athletic arms, we do not pretend to say, the fact is that she reached him in spite of much impediment and got back to land with him, a feat for which many hours of basketball and tennis had doubtless prepared the way.

But it is interesting too, to perceive that the young woman knew what to do when she got the boy safely to shore. The life-saving drill taught her by her father, a physician, came pat to hand. She stood the dripping youngster on his head and shook much water out of him. Then she rolled him and twisted his arms in the most appropriate fashion and managed altogether to aid nature very effectively in its attempt to rid the lungs of their painful and dangerous burden.

Back of both feats, of course, was that physical courage which the human race has learned to value so highly. It takes nerve to go into cold water with the odds against one.
It takes forgetfulness of self. These are the attributes which the Carnegie hero fund is bent on encouraging and conserving.

It would seem as though the Knox College freshman had from all accounts, demonstrated pretty clearly that she is of the sort for whom Carnegie medals are made.

Alone in the Field.

A young Chicago man went to a Western town in the first days of the oil excitement out there to see what was stirring.
The day after he arrived he went into a restaurant to get his breakfast and found an old friend sitting at the table to which he was assigned.

"Hello!" said the man at the table.
"When did you come in, Jim?"
"I got here yesterday. How long have you been here?"

"Six months. What are you going to do?"
"Oh, just look around and try to make an honest dollar."

"Well," said the six-months man.
"You ought to make your fortune.
You won't have any competition."

Parker Furniture Company.

Had you noticed the lack of color in her face?

She has long wanted a month's vacation—why not give it to her this summer? Give her a new lease on life—take her for a month's outing to the Lakes and Pines of Wisconsin where horseback riding along the pine-bordered roads, sailing and boating will add color to her cheeks and strength to her body.

A part of your vacation should be the trip North on "The Katy Limited" or "The Katy Express," the best trains to St. Louis and Kansas City. Both have quick, convenient schedules, both are superbly equipped, modern fuel-man stoves, electric lights, and electric fans, sliding window screens, library observation, and fares and the through service via the St. L. & T. Ry.
